

The New Jersey's "Do Not Call" law should not be tampered with. It has greatly reduced the number of unwanted telephone calls that come into my home. This gives me more quality time with my family. We used to get masses of unwanted calls, to the point that we stopped answering the phone when it rang. We advised all our friends that if they did not leave a message we would not answer. Of course sometimes, waiting for a call from one of our children we did answer, too often to find a telemarketer on the line who we had no interest in speaking with. It was an aggravating waste of time. I ceased even being polite with these people, and while ashamed of my own rudeness, I would hang up in angry frustration. The toll in stress and nerves should count for something. Please do not threaten a law that has found a way to lower stress and protect our precious private time. Sincerely, Marian Zelazny
